Business School Gives Honors at Annual Awards Banquet

The MSU School of Business Administration honored their graduating seniors and superior students named the outstanding Businessman and professional woman of the year at their awards banquet Tuesday evening. Chester H. Beck of the Continental Oil Co., Lum of Lum and Abner was featured speaker at the banquet, which was attended by more than 200 persons from throughout the state.

Outstanding
V. Hollingsworth, Hamilton, and Mrs. Jean Starr Higginson, teacher at Bridger High School, were named outstanding businessman and outstanding professional woman of the year.

Former Student
Hollingsworth is a graduate of Hamilton High School and MSU. He has been president of the Citizen's Club of Hamilton since 1939 and is currently serving as president of the Montana Banker's Assn. He is a member of the Governor's Business Highway Fact Finding Committee and a past president of the Hamilton Chamber of Commerce, he has been active in many community affairs.

Mother of Student
Mrs. Higham, mother of six and a member of MSU, carries on extensive community work besides her teaching position at Bridger. She was instrumental in the establishment of a public library in Red Lodge, and she has been active in 4-H work, the Republican Women's Club, and many other civic enterprises. A past officer of the Montana Mental Health Society, she is currently a member of the Governor's Mental Health Committee.

Sigma Nu's 'Sigie' Wins Sweepstakes

The Sigma Nu's frog "Sigie" jumped away with an easy victory to cop the Montana frog jumping sweepstakes on the oval today.

The frog jumping spectacle, witnessed by over 100 persons, had four divisions with "Sigie" taking honors for the overall longest jump, 7 feet 7 inches, and the Fraternity - Sorority division. Col. Harold C. Jamison's frog took first in the faculty-staff division and the Air Flight took first in the honorary organization division. Anderson's frog won first place in the individual bracket.

"Sigie" is on his way to California for the National Jumping Frog contest at Angel's Camp May 15. He will be met at the airport by Mr. Mills, secretary-manager of the national organization.

Judicial Council Applications Due

Applications for positions on Judicial Council will be interviewed Tuesday evening at 8 in the lounge.

Clint Grimes, J-Council president, Larry Pettit, ASMSU president, and four Central Board members will conduct the interviews. There will be three men and three women chosen for J-Council.

Grimes said there is still time to make applications to serve on the council. Applicants must have between 64 and 104 credits to qualify.

Pantzer Speaks to Lawyers Today

The newly-formed pre-law club, meeting this afternoon at 4 p.m. in the third floor of the law school, will have as its featured speaker, Robert Pantzer, Executive Vice-President of MSU. Pantzer, a practicing attorney in Livingston, is coming to the University to speak on "A Practicing Attorney and his Relationship with the Law."

Planning Camp Delegates Hear Fiedler, Castle

An address by acting President Gordon B. Castle, a keynote talk by Dr. Leslie Fiedler, and the framing of seventeen resolutions to be presented to Central Board highlighted the activities of Leadership Camp held at Flathead Lake May 9, 10 and 11.

The camp began on Friday afternoon with Dr. Fiedler's talk in which he called for closer faculty and student relations. Fiedler was followed by past president of ASMSU Roger Baty who mentioned some campus problems and suggested their discussion at the camp.

Friday night the delegates heard Dr. Castle say that the "future at Montana State University is a great future." He advocated a continuation of the University's "high social and academic standards."

Dr. Ellis Waldron, acting dean of the graduate school, then spoke on MSU's graduate program.

A general session with reports from group leaders on Friday's discussions began the business for Saturday.

Dr. Cynthia A. Schuster spoke on the progress of the honors program following these reports. A vote of confidence was later given the faculty honors committee and the honor program.

Six discussion points to be used for the rest of the camp session were then suggested by Dr. Paul A. Carter. The topics were 1) curriculum, 2) ethics and honors, 3) student-faculty relations, 4) student government, 5) extra and co-curricular activities, and 6) extra-University activities.

ASMSU President Larry Pettit presided at the afternoon meeting during which discussion group leaders presented suggestions concerning the six topics.

The discussion groups again met to form resolutions following this general meeting. Seventeen resolutions were passed from the list presented by the camp delegates.

Jackson Honored With Four Awards

Genell Jackson, former MSU student, was among 200 Butler University students cited at the annual Honor Day program in the Butler Fieldhouse last Thursday.

Miss Jackson received the Sigma Delta Chi scholarship award given to journalism seniors ranking in the upper 5 per cent of their class and the Luanna Lee award, presented by the Indianapolis chapter of Theta Sigma Phi to the outstanding women journalism student. She also won a $150 scholarship to be applied against future Butler tuition and was cited for her first-place sports feature on Barry Latman, Indianapolis Indian pitcher, by SDX.

Legal Fraternity Initiates Six Men

Six men were initiated into Phi Delta Phi, legal fraternity, Friday in a ceremony conducted in the Law School court room. New initiates are George Dalthrop, Wilbanx; Robert Jasperson, Annapolis, Md.; Stanley Deck, Great Falls; Don Dougherty, Butte; John Archer, Helena; and William Conklin, Great Falls.

Following the initiation, the fraternity met at the Happy Bungalow for their annual dinner. J. C. Garlington, Missoula attorney and past president of the Montana Bar Association, gave the address.

Board Approves U Budget, Hears Alumni, Press Protest

By PAUL QUINN

United Press Staff Correspondent

BUTTE (U)—The State Board of Education yesterday approved a $3,590,979 budget for Montana State University—thus apparently settling one phase of a month-long dispute which began when the board approved, then rescinded approval, of a $3,581,109 budget. After the board was presented the revised budget Dr. Gordon Castle, Acting President, was asked if the figures "were not substantially the same as prepared by Dr. McFarland" Castle said they were and added he thought they would be acceptable to his staff.

Alumni who opposed the board's announced decisions of last week apparently met with no success in causing the board to change its mind or resign.

The board also approved a $15,000 pro-rated salary for Dr. Carl McFarland whose resignation as MSU President was accepted "effective immediately" Tuesday of last week in a special meeting at Helena. McFarland had not taken his full earned vacations during his seven year tenure as first alumnus president of the institution. His salary is to run until July 1.

Dr. Castle will get a $3,000 a year raise starting July 1. As zoology professor and director of the University Biological Station he has been receiving $11,000.

Teachers on the MSU faculty appointment list will get raises roughly of five per cent. One board member said, however, the increases were "not across the board" and that they varied.

Shortly before noon the board met with alumni of the University who protested the board's acceptance last week of the McFarland resignation. At one point during the heated session a board member offered to resign.

But no further action was taken by the board on any of the matters concerning McFarland's termination as president. Harriet Miller, Superintendent of Public Instruction, stressed that the only thing concerning the discussion that would appear on the minutes was "so and so" appeared before the board.

A board member who asked not to be quoted by name said after the meeting, "It's over and done with."

After approving the budget the board faced its critics.

Ross Miller, resigning secretary of the MSU Alumni Assn., and Missoula businessman Ken Neils appeared before the board. Several of the board members made statements following Miller's talk.

Miller reiterated his demand of last Saturday that the board be dismissed. He read a statement by K. Ross Toole, who resigned Sunday night as director of the State Historical Society, which said, in part:

"I cannot personally and with good conscience be associated even indirectly with higher education in Montana from this day forth."

Toole, when announcing he was through as of Sept. 1, said he was resigning in protest of the board's acceptance of McFarland's resignation.

Miller closed his statements by saying, "If the governor is not so disposed to dismiss the board, I suggest that if the board is unwilling to do the honorable thing and resign that they rescind their action (in accepting the McFarland resignation)."

At one point during the heated session, a board member offered to resign.

"If I'm really a detriment to the educational system I wish to submit my resignation for the governor to act on," said Clarence Popham of Corvallis.

However, he said he did not wish to embarrass Gov. J. Hugo Aronson and no further action was taken on the matter.

Board member George Lund of Reserve read into the record an editorial from the Lewistown Daily News which dealt with McFarland's resignation (see editorial page) and Miller read a letter from the Kaimin.

The Kaimin letter asked for any comment the board wished to make "concerning rumored relationships between McFarland's accepted resignation, the Montana Power Co., Montana State College and Eastern, the American Legion and hopes by individual board members concerning the coming election."

Board members chuckled while the letter was being read but two of them stated that in "our personal opinion none of the factors mentioned entered into the board's decision."

Neils and Miller asked board members if they wished to make a statement and George Lund, Reserve, said:

"I don't believe that a statement from such a group whose integrity has been questioned as ours would bear much weight."

Neils read to the board a copy of a letter he had sent to Dr. Earl Hall, Great Falls, and to Aronson. Then he asked the board a number of questions, such as:

"Why was McFarland's resignation accepted? Is it not true that his budget had been approved before the directive to raise salaries was given to him? Did Dr. McFarland notify the board he could comply with the board's wish to raise salaries prior to the May 5 meeting by wire and by letter? Was this new budget thoroughly discussed by McFarland prior to the acceptance of his resignation? Who of the board has recently been to Missoula to thoroughly investigate these deliberations leading to the resignation carried on behind closed doors?"

Neils said "procedures of the board since April have been taken with extreme bad taste by the public." He said that already several of the top members of the faculty at MSU were making plans to leave the University.

"Members of the faculty are already seeking other positions," he said. "The American Assn. of University Professors presently has six universities on its black list—Montana is going to be seventh."

The Tree Has Been Ringed

Lewistown Daily News, May 7

The sacking of Montana State University President Carl McFarland is an abiding tragedy which sets back by at least a decade the cause of higher education in Montana as well as the potential of the state itself.

As the Great Falls Tribune so aptly put it, the Board of Education by its vindictive vote qualifies to be known as "The Board of Reprisal."

Make no mistake about it—be not lulled by the reassuring words now sure to pour forth from Helena—much more is lost here than one man's sacrificed career, as deplorable as that alone is. The battle of quantity versus quality education met headon before the Board of Education in the governor's office and quality was decisively defeated.

At the very time when the whole nation is reexamining its educational system, in light of Soviet scientific triumphs, with an eye toward reform and improvement, Montana takes this backward step into yesterday.

The issue at stake in this controversy was whether Montana could and would sustain a first-rate university. The Board of Education, despite the protests of outraged alumni and friends of higher education throughout the state, decided in the negative. Behind all the confusing smoke of charge and counter-charge and behind the conflict of personalities the question up for decision was simply one of standards. Mediocrity carried the day in Helena.

Montana State University will now be reduced to the admittedly inadequate level of five other institutions scattered about the state. Out the window yesterday went the concept of enrollment restricted to the ability of students to learn and to the ability of the university to teach. Out the window went the concept of quality education and high standards. Instead the board by its action practically served notice that every single child of any or every taxpayer in Montana not only has the inalienable right to attend Montana University but also to graduate with a degree.

Now, to be sure, the University will not collapse in dust. Life will go on. The ravages from what took place yesterday will take time before becoming apparent. The tree was not chopped down. It will stand on but it has been ringed and may be consumed by termites and inner rot. MSU promises to become a deceptive shell of what it is and might have been.

It seems that in the matter of education in Montana we have yet to learn the fundamental lesson that controversy has always been the price of progress. President McFarland lifted the standards of the University and controversy has been a part of the picture during his history-making administration. It is a small price to have paid compared with what we shall soon be paying for tranquility and stagnation in our higher education...

The conduct of our elected officials in this matter has been most disappointing. The board, itself a creature of Governor Aronson, seemed bent on its disastrous course regardless of the consequences. The governor who might have avoided or resolved this entire crisis by positive leadership, timidly refused to vote either way and history will record that while he wouldn't lift a finger to save the University at least he didn't participate in the raiding party. Not as much can be said for Attorney General Forrest Anderson, who disappointed his friends by joining the scalpers, and Superintendent of Instruction Harriet Miller, whose role in this matter has been particularly objectionable.

The most shocking aspect of this debacle is the Board's repeated practice of going into secret session. This is inexcusable and indefensible. Star Chamber proceedings have no place in the conduct of public business.

After the dust has settled, a grateful posterity will one day honor Merritt N. Warden of Kalispell and Boynton G. Paige of Philipsburg for resisting vindictive pressures; for voting to sustain quality education in behalf of future generations.

Tragically, this is not the first time in recent years that Montana has crucified a college president who tried to develop an outstanding university. This state seems destined to achieve an unsavory reputation in academic circles and who can deny that this will be deserved?

Since this entire crisis was precipitated by President McFarland's opposition to a wholesale firing of faculty members we can now assume that the board will now proceed to swing its meat ax on MSU teachers. Many professors who survive this promised purge will undoubtedly seek employment elsewhere in more stable, more secure and more pleasant colleges.

We shall, therefore, shortly have a leaderless and a crippled university, subject to the policies of a board which has proved its incapacity and to the wishes of every passing pressure group including the AFL-CIO whose advice to fire President McFarland the board seemed all too anxious to follow.

If there is any good that can come from this mess we cannot possibly see it—and all because cooler heads could not prevail; because our state leadership apparently lacks both the wisdom and the will to compromise.

'Look Forward' Says Hammen

To the Kaimin:

At this writing, five days have passed since the decision in Helena. Students and professors have expressed grave apprehensions. Rumors are afloat that specific deans or professors are certain to go—making either a voluntary exit or one that is less than voluntary. Certain young professors sense that the atmosphere in their department or school is less congenial than it was a month ago. In the face of the above, it cannot be emphasized enough that our Acting President has stated, in an administrative conference, that all who had been scheduled to be here next year will have their contracts. President Gordon Castle is a man of integrity and balanced judgement.

A new administrator is entitled to select his own administrative team. Isolated changes may occur. No one who knows President Castle, however, thinks that he will

SWEENEY IN THE TREES

Spring is here—the season of tree-sitting contests. This I applaud. Tree-sitting is healthful and jolly and as American as apple pie. Also it keeps you off the streets.

Tree-sitting is not, however, without its hazards. Take, for example, the dread and chilling case of Manuel Sigafoos and Ed Sweeney, both sophomores at the Nashville College of Folk Music and Woodworking, and both madly in love with a beautiful alto named Ursula Thing, who won their hearts singing that fine old folk song, I Strangled My True Love with Her Own Yellow Braids, and I'll Never Eat Her Sorghum Any More.

Both Manuel and Ed pressed Ursula to go steady, but she could not choose between them, and finally it was decided that the boys would have a tree-sitting contest, and Ursula would belong to the victor. So Manuel and Ed clambered up adjoining aspens, taking with them the following necessities: food, clothing, bedding, reading matter, and—most essential of all—plenty of Marlboro Cigarettes.

We who live on the ground know how much you get to like with a Marlboro. Think how much more important they must be to the lonely tree-dweller—how much more welcome their fine, mild tobacco; how much more gratifying their free-drawing filters; how much more comforting their sturdy, crushproof flip-top box. Climb a tree and see for yourselves.

"A TREE SITTING CONTEST" CRAWFORD

Well supplied with Marlboros, our heroes began their tree-sitting contest—Manuel with good heart, Ed with evil cunning. The shocking fact is that crafty Ed, all unbeknownst to Manuel, was one of three identical triplets. Each night while Manuel dozed on his bough, one of Ed's brothers—Fred or Jed—would sneak up the tree and replace him. "How can I lose?" said Ed with a fiendish giggle to his brother Fred or Jed.

But Ed had a big surprise coming. For Manuel, though he did not know it himself, was a druid! He had been abandoned as an infant at the hut of a poor and humble woodcutter named Cornelius Whitney Sigafoos III, who had raised the child as his own. So when Manuel got into the tree, he found much to his surprise that he had never in all his life felt so at home and happy. He had absolutely no intention of ever leaving.

After seven or eight years Ed and his brothers wearied of the contest and conceded. Ursula Thing came to Manuel's tree and cried, "I am yours! Come down and pin me."

But Manuel declined. Instead he asked Ursula to join him in the tree. This she could not do, being subject to moper (a morbid allergy to woodpeckers), so she ended up with Ed after all.

Only she made a mistake—a very natural mistake. It was Jed, not Ed, with whom she ended up.

Ed, heartbroken at being tricked by his own brother, took up metallurgy to forget.

Crime does not pay.

Happy Utes Split Doubleheader With Highly Improved Grizzlies

By BOB REAGAN

A happy Utah baseball team is seen the last of the Montana Grizzlies for this year—happy that they were given a split in this season series—happy that they don't have to meet the Grizzlies more often.

Blaine Sylvester is still a mighty pitcher, but it is highly doubtful that the Grizzlies hold him in awe any longer. Coach Hal's theme of utilizing a couple of lefties in batting practice proved conclusively to the Grizzlies that Sylvester was far from being an invulnerable pitcher. Sylvester came into the game with a terrific earned run average of 0.54 in four conference games.

Sylvester handcuffed the Grizzlies in their first meeting; he was believed in the second game (they say he tired), and he allowed four earned runs in his latest encounter. But lucky Sylvester again received the nod as victor.

The man who should have received the victory, instead of a loss, was Bruce Montgomery. Montgomery gave but one hit in the first six innings. The Grizzlies and Sylvester & Co. behind 4-0. The Grizzlies then gave Sylvester & Co. the ball game by allowing five unearned runs to come across in the seventh. Utah won 8-5.

Rollie Stoleson really went to town in the nightcap. He struck out the side in the ninth for a total of 10 strike outs and gave up only one earned run. Stoleson didn't allow a safe hit in the last five innings. Montana scored three runs and that was all the margin that Stoleson needed for a 3-2 victory.

Fore

Ed Chinske predicted a Montana victory over Utah. Chinske said that his boys only needed a few breaks and that the match would be ours. The BYU match, he said, would have been a Montana victory except that BYU got the breaks.

Chinske must feel like a prophet. The Grizzlies whipped the Redskins in a real close match 9½-8½, and the 'Tops decided that they liked being a winner by over-powering the Bobcats 16-2. Say Ed, what do you like for the Breakless?

Love

In tennis this word means no points scored. The Montana netmen did score a few points, but they didn't win any games against the Redskins. The Redskins are still vulnerable on the courts. They hadn't lost this year and it is doubtful if they will. The Redskins took the Grizzlies into camp by the same lopsided score of 10-0. This does not mean that we haven't any good players. On the contrary, we have a good team, but Utah, which has dropped only one match in their last 28 meets, was one of the finest tennis teams in Skyline history.

Bobcats Go Down

Adams' cindermen took Bobcats into camp 78-53. The meet was a tooth and claw battle from beginning to end as the Grizzlies took eight first places while the Bobcats came home first in seven tests. Dual meet records fell in the high hurdles, high jump and shotput. The Bobcats were the favorites, but Hank Mohland and Pete Rhinehart grabbed 16 big points in the hurdles to keep the Bobcats from coming too close. Both Russ Sheriff and Ken Wersland came in second to Jim Roban in the discus and shotput. Hal Utsond took the javelin throw and broad jump.

What a pity Mike Johnston isn't eligible this year. The two mile event was ran in 11:09.4. Johnston showed the crowd his wares in an exhibition two mile run by breezing to a very respectable 9:53.

ATO Wins Crown By Downing Elrod

ATO fraternity won the Intramural bowling tournament with 2,217 pins Saturday finishing ahead of SPE and Elrod Hall which had 2,101 and 2,079, respectively. The Independents, Craig 1st South and Craig 1st West, could not field enough men for their teams and did not compete.

In high total for 1 game, ATO took first and third with 798 and 765; SPE was second with 768.

In the individual scoring for one game, Fred Chapman, SPE, got first and second places with 226 and 214. Don Newhall, ATO, was third with 205.

In the individual scoring for a three game series, Chapman was again first with 601.

Sigma Rhee Meets Old Timers In Intramural Softball Finals

Sigma Rhee meets Old Timers tonight at 5 p.m. for the Intramural Softball title. In two close games played last weekend, Sigma Rhee edged out the Pogo Pups 7 to 6 in nine innings while the Old Timers beat out the Phi Delt 9 to 8.

In the bottom half of the seventh, Sigma Rhee pushed over two runs on four walks and a man hit by a pitched ball to knot the score at 5 all. Pogo Pups came back with one in the top of the ninth only to lose the game when Sigma Rhee drove home two runs in their half. After Moore walked, Balko was out pitcher to first. "Bushelbasket" Burke, a constant threat at the plate, was safe on an error. Mathews reached first, likewise. Hudson walked and Spargur singled home the winning tally.

McEacheron took his first loss in three years at the hands of the Old Timers, who won, 9-8. Sheasby doubled, Paladichuk tripled, Johnson walked and Shelby brought them in.

Steam Is Shut Off For Pool Hookup

The steam will be cut off in all buildings tomorrow as maintenance men install three new transformers to service the new swimming pool.

If the weather is too cold tomorrow, however, the installation will be put off until it warms up and the steam can be turned off without making it too cold in the buildings, according to Herb Torginson, assistant superintendent of buildings and grounds.

Torginson said the transformers which service the heating plant will be replaced by three large transformers which will service both the heating plant and the swimming pool. He estimated it would take a full day to make the switch.

As there will be no steam to run the dishwashing machine in the Lodge tomorrow's meals will be served on paper plates and paper utensils will be used, according to Gertrude Chamberlain, food production manager at the Lodge.

'Look Forward'

act hastily or without consulting representative members of the faculty in filling vital positions. That has not been his way, and we have no cause to fear that he has changed. Alarmist sentiment is out of order there.

As for the acquisition of a new president, whoever it may be, the prospects are not entirely bleak. First of all, it is still possible that the present Board of Education (for they are honorable people, and not without understanding) may yet provide an explanation less fantastic than the information now available concerning their reasons for accepting the resignation of Dr. McFarland. Secondly, there has been talk for some time about a change in the state set-up which controls the University of Montana. The present crisis may serve to bring that about.

In the event either of the above conditions becomes a fact, it will again be possible for a person of self-respect, capacity, independence of judgement, and endowed with constructive views, to consider the presidency of Montana State University. Both students and faculty should look forward to the next year with hope.

Planning Camp

The major points of these resolutions are:

1) that Central Board set up rules regulating ASMSU elections, campaigns and campaign expenditures.

2) that the two faculty delegates to Central Board be elected by the faculty from a list of nominations submitted by Central Board and that one be from the College of Arts and Sciences and the other from a professional school. The two faculty members should be accorded one vote between them.

3) that the two faculty delegates serve with the ASMSU president and AWS president and the administration delegate as a coordinating committee for long range planning of academic standards, integrity of the University, public relations, etc.

4) that Central Board allocate funds for the publication of a course evaluation booklet prepared by the students.

5) that, in view of the loss of library books through theft, the Library be requested to put the students on their honor for one year with the understanding that if theft does not diminish by the end of the year a rigid check-out system be established.

6) that more scholarships of larger amounts be given to encourage the Montana high school students to attend the University.

7) that Central Board recommend to the AWS Student-Faculty Relations committee that it consider resuming student-faculty coffee hours.

Tonight's Fashion Show To Emphasize Chemises

The annual AWS Big-Little Sister style show will be held tonight at 8:00 p.m. in the Yellowstone Room of the Lodge.

Three representatives from each living group on campus will model spring fashions. The emphasis will be on the new chemise styles.

Wives of faculty members are invited to attend the show.
